Massage Special – Headache Relief Massage

The most common type of headache is the tension headache. It is estimated that 80-90% of the population suffer from tension headaches at some point in their lives.

Typical causes of tension headaches are muscle constriction brought on by stress. Massage is a great way to help these muscles get the proper and necessary blood flow they need to help them release.

Throughout the entire body there are pressure points and key muscle groups that are known to help relaxation and trigger the proper response to aid in headache relief. Let us maintain your tranquility with this Headache Relief Massage.
